

IOANA BETEG

A LULLABY FOR GOD

SELF-DESTRUCTION
AND
THE POSTMODERN CONSUMERISM

Editura Muzeului Țării Crișurilor
Oradea, 2023

CONTENTS

Introduction	5
Consumerism: life on sale	23
How did we get here?	25
Consumerism, class, and violence	39
Consumption and vice in Postmodernism	53
Consumption is not a gift	65
The strategies of self-destruction	79
The American way of self-destruction	81
Is God outworn?	96
The divinity as a scapegoat of Postmodernism	107
Faith without Reason	124
Suicide as an act of creation	139
The breath of Chaos	141
The paradox of trying to organize the chaos	160
The outside world: madness and consumption	181
How to become Jesus	196
Post-consumerist alienation	209
Deadly rhymes	211
Silence - a weapon against chaos	229

362 A LULLABY FOR GOD

The Mayhem of memory	249
The self as the enemy	261
The post-apocalyptic consumer	277
Consumerist transgressive fiction	279
Sexuality and domination	290
The body as an enemy	309
The image of the body dissolved by consumption	326
Conclusions	339
Bibliography	355